Peter Friedmann led formation of the Agriculture Transportation Coalition when agriculture shippers sought assistance in dealing with transportation challenges. Now, the Journal of Commerce declared the AgTC as "the principal voice of U.S. agriculture in transportation policy" as we pursue dependable, affordable ocean, rail and truck transportation services for exporters and importers.

The world's largest ocean carrier recently introduced Peter as "the architect of the Ocean Shipping Reform Act of 2022".

In addition to the AgTC, he established and counsels two powerful trade associations: the Pacific Coast Council of Customs Brokers and Freight Forwarders and the Coalition of New England Companies for Trade (CONNECT).

His reputation as a Washington DC "insider" is based upon his previous tenure on Capitol Hill. First as Counsel to the Chair of the Senate Finance Committee, then the Committee on Commerce, Science and Transportation. Together these Committees are responsible for all of our nation's trade, tax, and transportation laws and policies and their enforcement.

He is known to many by his email address OurManInDC@FederalRelations.com
